

Parkwatchscotland – an update

Description

When I set up parkswatchscotland in March I had no idea what I was letting myself in for. I had broadly conceived it as an open platform for people concerned about our two National Parks and had hoped to get a team of active contributors within a few weeks. I thought I might write a post or two a week. Its not quite worked out like that. While there are now lots of people contributing to parkwatch in various ways, from ideas, to providing photos to promoting posts on social media only a handful of you so far have wanted to write posts and I have no co-editors to continue to publish posts while I go off on holiday. This is a shame because there is a lot going on at present!

However to keep up the momentum, I have scheduled a number of “Postcards to the Park” to appear while I am on holiday. Any comments that are submitted on these may take a few days to appear as I will be in the mountains and am not much good yet at managing the blog from a phone! If after seeing the postcards, you have a photo which you think makes a point, do please forward to parkswatchscotland.

Thankyou all for your support.

Category

1. Uncategorized

Date Created

July 2, 2016

Author

nickkempe