

The Save Portincaple Campaign

Description

Major new developments proposed for Loch Long and Loch Lomond. The solid and darker green depicts the area included within the National Park. Map credit Google Maps

Residents of Portincaple have produced an excellent short video (see here) for their campaign launch on Monday explaining the development which threatens their local community and why they are opposed to it. The Hovering Scotsman has also supported them by providing another video showing the wonderful landscape of Loch Long along with the aims of the campaign (see here). Both are well worth a look for anyone with an interest in the area or looking for campaign ideas.

I have been asked to speak at the meeting about the wider development pressures in the area (see map above) and what residents and others who are interested might be able to learn from what's been going on in the Loch Lomond and Trossachs National Park. Other speakers include three MSPs, Jackie Baillie, Maurice Corry and Ross Greer.
